We live in a big house in the suburbs. As you enter the house through the front door, you go into the (1). It is rather long and it is usually quite cold. It has a wooden floor and there is a chest of drawers, a coat rack and an umbrella stand. There is also a big mirror on the wall. As you go further inside the house, you get to the (2). This is where our meals are prepared and where you can usually see my mother or my grandmother cooking something or just sitting at the table and sipping a cup of coffee. Beside it, there is our (3). We do not spend much time there. We only have our meals there. But in fact it is a special place for us because this is where you can see my whole family sitting together. After breakfast or dinner we usually stay there for several minutes and discuss the family matters. Right nearby there is a door that leads to the (4). In this place my mother stores food, especially her lovely juices, jams and marmelades that she usually makes in summer. On the ground floor of our house there is also a big (5) with a TV set and a stereo set. In this room our parents usually relax after work. From there you can go outside through the glass door straight into our garden. Next to this room there is a small quiet place where we do not often look into. It is our father's room where he can work in peace. He calls it his (6). There is his desk with a computer and a lot of bookcases. There are three (7) in our house. I and my brother sleep in the one on the first floor. My parents take the one on the ground floor and my sister, who is only four, sleeps in the (8), where there are her toys and where she usually plays. On each floor there is a (9) and a(10), so we do not have to wait in a line to brush our teeth in the morning or use the toilet. On the first floor, next to the bathroom, there is a (11) in which we keep our household appliances and utensils. In the basement of our house there are a few rooms but only one of them is worth mentioning. It is the (12). Here, my father spends his free time repairing things or even constructing something. I also like to spend my leisure time there building my wooden plane models.
